

GRANT WOOD AEA
CRITICAL INCIDENT STRESS MANAGEMENT TEAM

WAYS ADULTS CAN MANAGE STRESS AND GRIEF REACTIONS

- Let others help you. Talk about your thoughts and feelings as often as you feel the need. Identify friends, family, coworkers, counselors/therapists or spiritual directors who are helpful listeners. Repeatedly talking about the event and your reactions is part of the healing process.
- Recognize that your feelings (sadness, sorrow, confusion, anger, etc.) are all typical reactions to the traumatic event. You may find yourself even becoming more irritable at times.
- Understand that current losses or traumatic events often resurrect prior losses, and that multiple losses can erode past coping strategies that seemed to work well for you.
- Make a special effort to take care of yourself.
- Make sure to get enough sleep. An increase in fatigue is common at these times.
- Eat a balanced diet. You might even consider reducing caffeinated beverages.
- Consider meditation, relaxation tapes, or listening to your favorite music.
- Get physical exercise -- e.g., take a walk, walk the dog, garden, exercise, etc.
- There is a temptation when the stress level is high to try to numb the feelings with alcohol and drugs. Substance abuse complicates the situation, rather than providing relief.
- Avoid making major life decisions regarding your job, buying a house or car, moving, etc., during this emotionally unsettling time.
- Connect with friends and family in an enjoyable activity. Visit a park, go bowling, attend a concert, play a favorite board game, rent a silly movie, etc.
- Try to maintain a steady level of productive activity at work and play, but pace yourself.
- Try to finish one activity or project before beginning another.
- You may discover that you have to write things down or remind yourself more often.
- Know and respect your personal limitations. Don't make unreasonable demands on yourself. Allow yourself to say "no" without feeling guilty.
- Try to avoid feeling that you have to "get through this quickly" and "get back to your typical routine." Give yourself permission to slow down.
- Don't be surprised if you do get back into a typical work and family routine fairly quickly. This can be reassuring and comforting to many.
- Above all, be understanding of yourself and others.
- What you are experiencing is typical for a traumatic situation.

www.gwaea.org/cism

Resource created by Grant Wood AEA 2020 and licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International License. All other rights reserved related to third party content. Resource contacts: Sharon Clark and Amanda Osborn, GWAEA CISM Team.

Grant Wood Area Education Agency extends equal opportunities in its employment practices, educational programs and services, and does not discriminate on the basis of color, gender, race, national origin, religion, creed, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, disability, veteran status or as otherwise prohibited by law. If you believe you or your child has been discriminated against or treated unjustly, please contact the Agency's Equity Coordinator, Maria Cashman, at 319-399-6847 or 800-332-8488, Grant Wood AEA, 4401 Sixth St. SW, Cedar Rapids, IA 52404.

GRANT WOOD
AREA EDUCATION AGENCY